TALLINN, ESTONIA — May 19, 2026 — Aardvark Anteater Acoustics Games OÜ, the independent Estonian studio known as AAA Games, is thrilled to announce the official launch of its highly anticipated horror title, All Hallows, available today on the Epic Games Store. The game promises players a journey into a chilling world where narrative, exploration, and combat blend to create an unforgettable, deeply unsettling experience.

All Hallows has been developed from the ground up to redefine the horror genre, moving beyond simple jump scares to deliver a complex and psychological narrative that unfolds through player discovery. The game challenges players to explore a haunted environment, uncovering dark secrets while facing down relentless, unseen terrors. Every shadow and every sound has been meticulously crafted to build an atmosphere of dread that will keep players on the edge of their seats.

"We set out to create more than just a game; we wanted to craft a nightmare that players would willingly step into," said Martin Coombe, Creative Director at AAA Games. "With All Hallows, we've pushed the boundaries of what a horror game can be, weaving a story that gets under your skin and stays with you long after you've stopped playing. We can't wait for the community to finally experience the horrors we've unleashed."
